About No Education

Sometimes it is easier to describe what a thing is not. It is not about education, but about a certain attitude. No Education is an attitude that cannot be taught, communicated, or forced, but only practiced. No Education is a laboratory of aesthetic experience that for two years now has been introducing a great deal of movement in the standard relations between art, children, and education, raising new questions of fairness, exclusion, and the dignity of the child. A landscape of sensation, a choreography of dust, the exactness of a movement, the sounds of a city: children, young people, and adults are equally open for the searching investigation of form, space, and resonance.
